

Global Communication Learning Objectives

The Global Communication major helps students prepare for living in a global society through meeting the following objectives.

Students will be able to:

1. Demonstrate intercultural competence in a variety of situations
2. Demonstrate the ability to apply and explain a series of key concepts from their major areas of study (communication, language, culture, and ethics) to their personal experiences in intercultural environments.
3. Ethically, critically and systematically analyze problematic messages within a global setting.
4. Demonstrate communicative competence in a second language.
